FRANCE. THE STRASBURG REVOLUTION, Parts, Nov. 4 .- At six o'clock on Saturday morning last, (Oct. 29,) Louis Napoleon Bonaparie, called on a Colon lof Artillery, Vaudrey, in garrison at Strasburg, with whom he had been for some time in correspondence. The colonel conducted him to the barracks of his regiment, assembled the men, and presenting Louis to them, said,

"Louis Philippe is no more. His government has been overturned in Paris. There is an end of the dynasty of Orleans. Behold the descendant of the "great man." He is worthy of being our King, "Vive Napoleon Louis Bonaparte!" The soldiers joined in this cry, and immediately took up arms. Pickets were immediately marched to the botels of the different authorities, by whom the prefect and the general of brigade in command in command of the place were arrested. Colonel Parquin (brother of the barrister who defended Fieschi,) ac-companied Louis Napoleon to the house of General Voirol, and found him just getting out of bed. Colonel Parquin having ordered his men to arrest the General, the latter rushed to his bed side, and drew out a pistol which be levelled at Parquin, and drew the trigger, but the pistol missed fire. The general then ran behind a desk and addressed the soldiers, assuring them that they had been grossly deserved, and pointing at Porquin, as the principal in the found. ordered them to acres time. The soldiers in one moment resourced the exercise of their senses, and, furious at the idea of being made the tools of an intriguant and a liar, seize I him and carried him off to their quarters, where they told heir comrades what had occurred. In an instant the truth flashed on the soldiers, whose indignation was roused to the utmost by finding that they had been duped, and they would have instantly have torn to pieces their colonel. Louis Napoleon, and the other chiefs of the revolt, had they not been saved by the timely arrival of General Voirol, at the head of a body of troops of the garrison, In an instant all the revolters were in custody; the magistrates previously arrested by them were restored to liberty, and, before the people of Strasburg kne wany thing respecting it, the movement was suppress-The ringleaders arrested are eight in number. ATTEMPTED INSURRECTION AT VENDOME. The Ministerial evening Journal contains the following:—" An attempt at a military insurrection, still more senseless than that of Strasburgh, has just taken place at Vendome—in attempt which, in spite of its insignificance, merits some attention, on account of the coincidence between the dates of the two movements; for, as to the result of such rash and culpable undertakings,not the slightest appreheasion can be entertained. The following are the particulars of this insune attempt, made on the 30th ult., upon the loyalty of the 1st Regiment of Hussars, in garrison, at Vendome.—A Brigadier of the fourth squadron, named Bruyant, was at the inn of the Tete Noire with 14 Hussars of the Regiment, and at this meeting a plan had been adopted to sound to horse during the night, to seize upon the military posts, to master the offcers on duty, to arrest the authorities, and to proclaim the republic. The rebels were then to march upon the neighboring towns to increase their party. The meeting, before it broke up, was denounced to the Lieutenant-Colonel of the regiment, who lost no time in ordering the Brigadier and his fourteen accomplices to be arrested. On being conducted to the guard house, Bouyant availed himself of a moment of liberty to fire a pis of at a Quarter-master, placing the muzzle close to the body of the unfortonate man, who was instantly shot dead, the remittances. Bruyant profited by the confusion occasioned by the event, escaped from his guards swam across the Loir, and was soon out of sight. His principal accomplice, the hus-Thierry, also escaped at the first alarte. At two o'clock in the morning, Broyant of the following th at the Tete Noire, and whose arms were loaded, have been arrested, and have already undergone an examination. This cohouffource was confined to the barracks of the regiment, the tranquility of the town of Vendome, not having been, for a moment, interrupted. All the posts have been

THE Horse .- An Incident .- It is remarkable that a horse will seldom tread upon a prostrate body in the path. Either from feelings of compassion (and even a horse is accessible to such feelings, though some men are not) or from fear, a horse will studiously avoid inflicting injury on one thus exposed, unless excited by spirit of combat. In the latter case he becomes almost resistles. All his energies are bent on distruction, he tramples down opposing squadrons as he would the grass beneath his feet. These reflections are drawn from us by an incident which occurred on Thursday afternoon, almost within our sight. As the Germantown stoge, drawn by four horses, was passing a-long Third street above Willow, a small child endeavored to cross the street in advance of the leaders, apparently without obserbing the dangerous proximity of the latter. One of the leading horses appeared to appreciate the situation of the inlant, & made every effort to avoid coming in contact with it. He swerved from the direct line as far as he could, and endeavored to pass it, but being brought up by the rein, was forced against, and prostrated child. The instant the latter fell he stop-ped as it to allow it to escape; but being driven forward by the hinder horses and the impetus of the vehicle, he reared himseli on his hind legs, and with one bound cleared the body. In doing this, either from design or accident, he threw the child, with his hind foot, out of the track, so that when the heavy carriage passed on it did not run over it. This may be instinct, but it looks to us marvellously like reason and feeling .- [Penn. Sentinel.

Main colony in the operation.

As the success of the bee cultivation depends principally on the management of the queens, and preventing their destruc-tion by the moths; the proprietor has pub-lished a book which is designed as an accompaniment to the hive. This book is a concise work, containing only 73 pages, and yet contains all that is necessary to make a skilful Apiarian. It contains 13 plain, concise and easy rules, by which the bees may be managed in any manner their nature will admit of, and at the same time, make them the most profitable to their owner.
